

The Astorino Family

Rob Astorino, a married father of two, is a lifelong Westchester resident. He is running for County Executive to improve county government by making it less expensive and more efficient. He will streamline county and local services to save taxpayer money, and he'll work to change the culture of county government so that people's interests come before political interests.

Mr. Astorino earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communications with a Spanish/Political Science minor from Fordham University. He studied in Barcelona and received a Spanish Immersion Diploma from the Enforex School of International studies. Mr. Astorino, 42, currently resides in Hawthorne with his wife Sheila, their son Sean, 5, and daughter Kiley Rose, 4.

Change Is Coming To Westchester

Smarter Government. Better Government.

Rob Astorino will... Stop the Tax Madness
Consolidate Government
Restore Ethics

Dear Neighbors,

Times have never been tougher for Westchester families. Job losses, high taxes, collapsing real estate values, and lost retirement savings are challenging us like never before.

It's scary out there, and people need help.

At times like this, government leaders need to look out for our interests. Dollars should be spent wisely—or not at all. Here in Westchester that has not been the case for a long time.

We spend plenty of money, but we don't get the results we are paying for. Our government is grossly mismanaged, and our leaders look out for themselves first. That's unacceptable.

I am running for County Executive because we all deserve better.

I love this county and I am confident its best days are ahead. But we cannot keep taxing at the rates we do, and wasting tax dollars with redundant, poorly-managed government.

As County Executive, I will restructure Westchester government to save you money, because we don't have a nickel to waste.

Positive change is coming to Westchester. Please join me in being part of it.
